LONG, ACCUSER NEAR BLOWS

Here and There

—Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN—

I RECOMMEND you read Henry Ford's article in this week's Liberty magazine on the Factory and the Farm. Says Ford:

The reason I am so interested in the proper co-operation of the farm with the factory is just this: First of all, they are both natural things. They belong together. They have always been together until recent years. Almost every one can remember when every farmer had his workshop and every city institution had its garden.

We have two feet and two hands—we should have two sure ways of getting a living. The farm and the factory belong together, like two hands and two feet.

What is going to bring the farm and industry together? Why, the factory is going to move out into the country. The fancy name for this is the decentralization of industry.

Ford has been preaching in that manner for a long time. He preached it during the boom years following the war, when it was unpopular, and when everybody thought him an innocent crank.

X X X

Over my desk hangs a framed letter written me at El Dorado August 17, 1926, by C. P. J. Mooney, a country boy from Jefferson county, Arkansas, who went to Memphis in 1894 and as head of the Commercial Appeal became the greatest editor in the South since "Marse Henry" Watterson of the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Mooney wrote in this letter (he was dead 60 days later):

I don't care anything about the rich and the powerful. I do have an ambition to do something for the common every day man. I want to see America so that our people will remain on their land. Our industrial development is separating too many of our people into industrial pursuits. Industry dies, but the soil never dies if it is cared for.

It is a moot question whether truth is found in the cold statistics of the economist or the warm instinct of the human heart with its wealth of unconscious experience that is vastly older than statistics.

There is something satisfying in the words of these two men which, originally uttered years ago, unpopular then, and out of step with the times, have come today to hold a vital message.

It rather reminds us that men never really change—only circumstance changes—and the man or woman who knows any true formula for happiness stands high in the estimation of a public today panic-weary.

Mission Meeting Ends Thursday at Local M. E. Church

Mrs. J. M. Stinson, Camden, Elected President Next Two Years

PINE BLUFF CHOSEN

Little Rock Missionary Conference to Meet There Next Time

Following a brief worship led by Mrs. O. A. Graves of the local Woman's Missionary Society the sixth and final session of the conference in session at First Methodist church was called to order Thursday by Mrs. W. P. McDermott, the president.

The election commissioners, Mrs. D. B. Thompson, Mrs. H. H. Stuart and Mrs. Frank Miles, through the latter member made their report of the results of balloting for conference officers. The vote was cast Wednesday.

The following were elected to serve for the ensuing two years.

Mrs. J. M. Stinson of Camden, president; Mrs. L. K. McKinney of El Dorado, vice president; Mrs. K. King Wade of Hot Springs, recording secretary; Mrs. Walter Ryland of Pine Bluff, corresponding secretary; Mrs. S. W. C. Smith of Little Rock, was re-elected treasurer by unanimous vote; Mrs. T. H. McLean of Malvern, superintendent of children's work; Miss Ruth May of Little Rock, superintendent of young women; Mrs. A. R. McKinney of Texarkana, superintendent of missions; Mrs. B. J. Reaves of Little Rock, superintendent of Christian industrial and social relations; Mrs. L. E. Hundley of Prescott, superintendent of supplies; Mrs. J. G. Sponnenberger of Arkansas City, superintendent of supplies.

Final Message

The retiring president, Mrs. W. P. McDermott, presented the new officers to the conference with the words, "I present your leaders for the next two years. You have chosen wisely. May God bless you."

Mrs. McDermott, having served for four years and having asked to be relieved because of heavy duties in her work in Little Rock, the conference presented her with a beautiful basket of flowers, and voted to have her name put on the Woman's Building at Mt. Sequoyah.

Miss Ruth May made a report of the young people's work of the conference. She paid a fine compliment to the work of the young women's circle of the society in Hope, saying that they were among the conference leaders in finance, and pointing to the program given by them at the annual dinner Tuesday night as an indication of the unusual work being done here. Mrs. Sid McMath has been the leader of this group until recently and has been succeeded by Mrs. John Vesey and Mrs. Frank Stanley.

The nominations for district secretary were made and the conference approved the nomination of Mrs. C. A. Evans for Arkadelphia district; Mrs. Guy Patterson for the Camden district; Mrs. W. O. Clark for the Little Rock district; Mrs. H. T. Rucks for the Monticello district; Mrs. W. C. Watson for the Pine Bluff district; Mrs. A. W. Hale for the Prescott district Mrs. W. L. Phillips for the Texarkana district.

Miss Constance Rumbough, representative of the Woman's Missionary Council, was given the floor. She explained that she was leaving on the noon train and wanted to think the people of Hope for the many courtesies shown the guests during the conference.

Next Year at Pine Bluff

The place of the meeting for the next year was brought up and invitations were given by Mrs. Frank Johnston of First Church, Pine Bluff, and Mrs. A. M. Hart of Lakeside Pine Bluff. The conference voted to meet in 1935 with the Lakeside Church. It is a matter of interest that Pine Bluff, the place of the next year's conference, is the home of Mrs. Walter Ryland, the new corresponding secretary, and the former home of Mrs. J. M. Stinson, the new president who will preside there for the first time, and that the invitation to Pine Bluff was given by Mrs. A. M. Hart, reared in Hope.

The following resolutions of thanks were voted:

Resolutions Of Thanks

We your committee of courtesy, on behalf of the women of the Little Rock Conference, are delighted to have this opportunity of expressing our deep appreciation to Mrs. O. A. Graves and the women of the Hope auxiliary, and to Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Rule, the pastor and his wife, for the gracious hospitality, both in the homes of the people and in the church.

We enjoyed the lovely reception,

Brokerage Houses Fight Stock Bill

But U. S. Is Determined to Protect Investors From Fraud

NEW YORK—Brokerage house heads continued grousnig Wednesday over outcome of the Fletcher-Rayburn bill's passage.

In one immense wire house, all employes were placed on a "stager system," one week off without pay for the month of April. Telegraphers alone evaded the "stagger" part of the retrenchment, but were hit by a 12½ per cent reduction in salaries.

The change was blamed upon losses suffered by the threat of the bill, as well as upon the results of the New Deal. In another big firm, with an overhead of $3,400,000 annually, partners were told that passage of the bill must bring a slash of this sum to $1,688,000, mostly in salaries, figuring upon a total market turnover daily of only 1,000,000 shares. This would mean dropping half of the firm's 800 employes.

Meanwhile, the news columns carried a story showing how holders of International Combustion Engineering Corporation had awakened to the fact that the stock had no real equity value when they bought.

Because of just such practices President Roosevelt has demanded regulatory legislation for exchanges. All combustion shares, it developed, bought since April 3, 1933, were merely certificates and nothing more. Two issues of the shares were traded on the New York Stock Exchange until May 25, 1933.

The Curb Exchange has followed its big brother in admitting that the stocks of solvent companies ought to be separated from securities of insolvent concerns. It has therefore copied the Stock Exchange in asking the press to give such stocks special designation in the stock tables.

That is well enough so far as it goes; but concern for investors should begin at the same place as charity. Neither the Stock Exchange nor the curb make any atempt to warn the public directly of the risk in buying bankrupt stocks. Thus far neither has shown much warmth for the suggestion that stocks should be dropped from trading automatically when companies go into insolvency.

Charge Governor Got 50 Race Passes

Racing and Liquor Issues Uncertain; Futrell Is Silent

United Press Telegram to Paragould Foiled by Turkey Hunt

SESSION ON MONDAY

New Effort to Get Additional Subjects Before Special Session

By BOYDEN UNDERWOOD
United Press Staff Correspondent

LITTLE ROCK—(UP)—Gov. J. Marion Futrell remained silent on his plans for the special session of Arkansas' legislature which will meet here Monday April 9, at noon.

The session was called primarily to pass a bill which will permit the state to borrow $1,700,000 from the PWA to complete the state hospital at Benton.

No answer had been received to the telegram United Press sent the governor early Wednesday at the request of a client newspaper.

Betting and Liquor

The telegram, which we will print, asked, in effect, two questions which we believe are of news value to readers in the state.

1. Will you ask that betting on horse races be legalized?

2. Will you ask that sale and control of liquor in Arkansas be legalized?

It is no secret that one of the finest bars in the south dispensed liquor openly throughout the racing meeting at Hot Springs; no secret that betting went on unhampered at Oaklawn track against the law; no secret that members of the governor's secretarial staff, the attorney general, the secretary of state, the lieutenant governor and many of the governor's relatives went to the races on passes; no secret that most of them placed wagers on tc bank-tails.

50 Passes to Governor

There was a rumor (unconfirmed) in Little Rock that 50 passes were requested by and given to the governor's office for the races.

The telegram sent Gov. Futrell:

"Gov. J. Marion Futrell, Paragould, Ark.

"United Press client asks us the following questions which we refer to you for answer.

"Will you include in your call for a special session a bill to legalize betting on horse races?

"If not why?

"Hot Springs business men plan a fall race meet. If no bill is included to take care of this, what will be your stand? Will it be to enforce the law?

"Will it be to ignore it as happened the past race meet at Hot Springs?

"Will you include in your call a bill to legalize and control the sale of liquor in Arkansas?

"If not why?

Liquor Sold Openly

"Liquor is being sold openly across bars in cities and towns in Arkansas. Various constitutional officers, state senators, representatives and others high in state government circles were among the best customers of the wide open bar operating at Hot Springs.

If these questions are not submitted at this third special session, isn't it your opinion that the race meet this fall will run unhampered again?

"The laws of Arkansas prohibit gambling; prohibit betting on races; prohibit the sale of liquor, so isn't it your opinion these laws should either be repealed or enforced?

"Do you believe statehouse officials should accept passes to races, or state police use their badges to gain admittance to the races in view of the illegality of betting on races?

"Please wire reply soonest DPR Collect to United Press, Little Rock. Boyden Underwood, United Press."

On Turkey Hunt

LITTLE ROCK — (UP) — United Press learned that Gov. J. M. Futrell is hunting turkeys in Greene county and has not received the telegram sent him Wednesday morning.

Information from Paragould said the governor would not be back to town before Friday "sometime."

The legislature starts Monday. The governor cannot be reached in the woods.

A white rose bush was brought from Madrid, Spain, 127 years ago, and planed in Mission San Gabriel, Calif., where it still blooms.

Burro meat is offered for sale in butcher shops in Las Vegas, Nev., and a few other towns in the desert area of the southwest.

Race Advocates Are Busy at Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—As Governor Futrell issued a substitute call for the special legislative session next Monday to embrace three bills in aid of the state hospital's Public Works Administration loan reports were current that proponents of pari-mutuel betting on horse races were striving to obtain a two-thirds vote in each house to consider the measure.

Legislators here on business Thursda yadmitted a strong effort would be made to extend the session for racing legislation.

Utility Gave Own State Association $10,733 Last Year

LITTLE ROCK—Of contributions amounting to $15,206.48 to chambers of commerce and other organizations made by the Arkansas Power & Light Co. during 1933, the Arkansas Utilities association received $10,733.37, Frank M. Wilkes of Pine Bluff, general manager, testified at the resumption before the Fact Finding Tribunal of the hearnig on Stuttgart's application for a 20 per cent electric rate reduction Wednesday.

Of the $4,473.11 balance, the Little Rock Chamber of Commerce received $750 and the United States Chamber of Commerce $400, Mr. Wilkes said. Service clubs, chambers of commerce and other organizations received the balance, $3,323.11, as dues and contributions.

An additional sum of $1,610.47 was shown as central division expense of the company for dues and contributions to various organizations.

The figures were first shown on an exhibit introduced by the tribunal. Asked by Chairman P. A. Lasley if he were not surprised to know that more than $10,000 had been contributed to the Utilities Association, Mr. Wilkes said that he thought there was some mix-up in the figures, as it was his understanding that the company's contributions to the organization amounted to $450 or $475 a month.

Mr. Wilkes, asked for itemization of the amount, said that he was not prepared to give it at the hearing, but would be glad to investigate it and submit a detailed itemization to the tribunal for its consideration.

The association, he said in answer to a question of its activities by Chairman Lasley, acts as a clearing house for Arkansas utilities companies and serves as a medium for discussion of common problems. It also makes donations to civic campaigns and conducts general advertising campaigns for the industry, he said.

Suit Against Oil Company Is Given to Jury at Noon

Trial of Homer Fuller Vs. Sinclair Ends After Two Days

INSURANCE ACTION

Katie Knight Vs. Metropolitan Case Is Opened Late Thursday

Testimony in the $50,000 civil suit brought by Homer Fuller of this city against Sinclair Oil & Refining company was completed Thursday morning in Hempstead circuit court at Washington. The jury retired with the case shortly after noon.

Testimony in the trial centered around an alleged oil shortage at a filling station operated by Mr. Fuller at Hope. It was charged that Mr. Fuller was several thousand gallons short in a gasoline measurement.

Attorneys for Mr. Fuller contended that the chart used in the measurement was wrong, and that after a remeasurement with another chart there was no gasoline missing other than the amount allowed for evaporation.

Attorneys for Mr. Fuller are: Lawrence Mitchell, Prescott; U. A. Gentry, Little Rock; E. F. McFaddin, Hope. The law firm of Graves & Graves are local legal representatives for the oil company, and other attorneys from outside the state are associated with them. The trial has consumed more than two days, starting Tuesday morning.

The second civil suit in the April term of court was to start Thursday afternoon. The case was brought by Katie Knight against Metropolitan Life Insurance company in which she seeks to collect insurance for the death of her husband.

Attorneys for plaintiff will contend that Knight's death resulted from injuries in lifting heavy timber. Attorneys for the insurance company were to present testimony that Knight's death resulted from other complications.

Four Flood Deaths at Menard, Texas

Nine Bodies Found in Oklahoma—1.7 Inches Rainfall in Hope

By the Associated Press

Texas entered into the nation's flood picture Thursday with four victims, as nine bodies were recovered in the western Oklahoma flood in which nearly a score may have perished.

As was the case in Oklahoma, where the flood centered around Elk City and Hammon, the southwest Texas deaths near Menard occurred when a stream, usually shallow, became a torrent because of heavy rains.

The Oklahoma flood damage was estimated at $625,000.

It is estimated that damage of several million dollars was done in northern and western Wisconsin by rain and melting snow. Nine persons died in that state.

Seven channel projects in the upper Mississippi were endangered by the high water.

1.7 Inches Rain Here

Torrential rains swept Hempstead county late Wednesday afternoon and Thursday morning, the total downfall for 21 hours being 1.7 inches.

The first storm struck at 3 Wednesday afternoon, with a precipitation of .25 inch up to 6 p. m. But from 6 p. m. on the rain increased, precipitation being 1.45 inches from that hour up to noon Thursday.

The weather began to fair off at Midday Thursday, but the forecast is for cloudy skies and thunder-showers Thursday night and Friday.

Lightning Kills Man

LITTLE ROCK—One person was killed, another injured, and considerable property damage was caused by electrical storms which swept most of Arkansas Wednesday. Heavy rainfall was general in the state and more rain was predicted for Thursday.

Carson L. Alley, Mississippi county farmer, was killed when he was struck by lightning at his home near Barfield.

Miss Louise Salter of Pine Bluff suffered a head injury when thrown from a chair by a lightning shock.

Rainfall, hail, high wind and lightning were storm evidences at Little Rock. Between 9:15 and 9:20 a. m., more than half an inch of rain fell here and the total at noon was 1.25 inches. The total Wednesday night

PRAYER FOR PEACE

On Seventeenth Anniversary of the United States' Entry in World War, April 6, 1917

By Helen Welshimer

WE pray for peace . . . Oh, must we always ask Thee
To let spring come serenely to green fields?
To let us watch our sons grow tall, not fearing
The aftermath a finished battle yields?

AS trees go down in Lebanon You told us
Empires would pass, then visioned peace would come
When men would dream of half-forgotten battles,
Weave legendry about a silenced drum.

MAY we have peace—we are so tired of turmoil.
Oh, always somewhere there are roads that ring
With flash of steel, blue armor or the khaki
Where men fight vainly for a petty thing.

THERE is no difference, God, in men who battle;
Alike they dream of how the firelight throws
Brave gold across the hair of some loved woman.
One dream alone each weary soldier knows:

A LONG, long road, far-winding to a haven
Where is peace beyond a half-glimpsed door.
A half-forgotten silence that comes singing,
An end, dear God, to panoply of war!

Woman, Formerly of Hope, Is Killed

Mrs. Mary A. Shelton, 63, Struck by Little Rock Car

Mrs. Mary A. Shelton, 63, formerly of this city, died shortly after 11 Wednesday night in a Little Rock hospital from injuries received when she was struck by a car driven by Gene Stoddard. The accident occurred at Little Rock about 7:30 Wednesday night.

She suffered a broken right leg, a fractured pelvis bone and internal injuries.

Stoddard, Little Rock man, accompanied Mrs. Shelton to the hospital and later reported to police. He was charged with reckless driving and released under $300 bond.

Stoddard said that the woman stepped in front of his machine from behind another car, and that the accident was unavoidable.

Mrs. Shelton was visiting her sister, Mrs. C. R. Taylor, 318 Arch street, Little Rock.

Mrs. Shelton was planning to leave Little Rock at 10 Wednesday night for Texarkana, where a daughter, Miss Sadie Shelton, is critically ill. She was going to the home of a friend to find some one to remain with Mrs. Taylor when she was injured.

Mrs. Shelton was the wife of the late W. V. Shelton. They lived here a number of years, later moving to Texarkana. A son, Will Shelton, remained in Hope for several years where he was employed as assistant cashier of Citizens National Bank.

The body will probably be returned to Hope for burial. However, no information had been received here by Hope Furniture company undertakers at 11:30 Thursday morning.

Besides her daughter and Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Shelton is survived by a sister, Mrs. W. B. Riddick of Texarkana; three sons, Robert of Texarkana and Will and Forrest of Henderson, Texas, and by three brothers, Frank Davenport of Texarkana and Albert and Will Davenport of Shreveport, La.

Covering a ground area of 570 by 360 feet, a windowless factory has been erected in Massachusetts, elaborate lighting and ventilating systems being provided.

Payrolls Hit New "High" Since 1931

Senate Battles Over Terms of New Income Tax Bill

WASHINGTON. — (AP) — Industrial payrolls hit a new high in February, creating peaks in both wages and employment untouched since early 1931.

The Department of Commerce, announcing this on Thursday, added that probable further improvement in March would supplant these figures.

None of the figures included the pay increases recently announced in the steel, automobile and other industries.

Debate Income Tax

WASHINGTON—(AP)—After approving the finance committee proposal for a flat 4 per cent normal income tax and a modified surtax schedule aimed at larger incomes and ranging from 5 to 59 per cent, the senate late Wednesday got into a wrangle over efforts to boost both of these classes of rates still higher and adjourned without settling the issue.

An agreement was reached to limit debate beginning Thursday with a view to reaching an early vote on an amendment by Senator La Follette, Republican, Wisconsin, to raise the normal income tax to 6 per cent and to make the surtaxes range from 6 to 71 per cent as against one to 55 per cent in existing law.

La Follette proposed this schedule as a substitute for the committee rates, but a speech on redistribution of wealth by Senator Long, Democrat, Louisiana, prevented a decision. Long proposed limiting debate on the substitute Thursday to 30 minutes for each senator and this was agreed to.

Previously, the Senate had accepted virtually every other major revision of the house bill that was proposed by the finance committee, including a capital stock and excess profits tax designed to raise $95,000,000.

Compromise Expected

Chairman Harrison of the finance committee said later that he expected a compromise would be reached on estate tax rates and the matter threshed out in conference with the house. He said the finance committee would accept a modified La Follette amendment fixing estate tax rates in a range from one per cent on net estates under $35,000 to 60 per cent on those over $10,000,000.

The proposed modification would

Senator Resents Charge He Owns New Orl'ns Track

Invites Attorney 'Outside' as Gambling Charges Fly Fast

PATRONAGE BATTLE

"Kingfish" Opposing Revenuer Moore, Roosevelt Appointee

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Senator Huey P. Long invited Edward Rightor, attorney for D. D. Moore of New Orleans, to "step outside" Thursday during a heated exchange before the senate finance committee about New Orleans horse racing.

Order was quickly restored, however, and the questioning resumed.

The verbal duel started when William C. Grace, Washington attorney, testified that he made bets at the New Orleans track on the advice of officials, and all his selections won.

Rightor said Grace was at the spring meeting and the Louisiana Jockey club, in which Colonel John P. Sullivan and Colonel E. R. Bradley were interested, did not have a meeting at that session.

"Your Track, Senator!"

"The track Grace visited," Rightor said, "was Jefferson. That's your track, senator," he added.

Long shot back that Rightor's statement was an "infamous falsehood and there's not a word of truth in it."

Long added: "I have never been in a race track in my life. I never placed a bet on a horse race."

Meanwhile, Rightor rose calmly and leaned toward Long.

"I would like to say you wouldn't say that if there weren't a lot of policemen here,' he told the senator.

"Outside, Please

Long then invited him to step outside.

Shaking his fist, Rightor said, "You wouldn't do a thing to me, old man."

Long has charged that Sullivan dominated the internal revenue office in New Orleans since Moore became collector. The senator is fighting against confirmation of Moore's appointment in the senate.

Wounded Negro's Arm Is Amputated

Curley Moore, Fugitive, Undergoes Operation Here

Physicians at Julia Chester hospital Thursday afternoon amputated the left arm of Curley Moore, Hope negro. The arm was removed three inches below the shoulder.

Moore was shot several days ago when police guns routed him from Stephenson's grocery store at Third and Main streets. Moore was caught robbing the store early one Sunday morning.

Refusing to surrender, he fled through a rear door in a hail of bullets. He ran to the Sinclair oil station at Third and Walnut where he dropped to the concrete, one bullet in his body.

Moore was indicted this week by the Hempstead county grand jury on charges of burglary and grand larceny. He is scheduled to go to trial when the criminal docket starts next week.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

Here's an Idea Where That Two Billion Is Going . . . Red Plot or Just Alcohol? Jobless Statistics Another Guessing Game . . . Auto Ads in A. F. of L. Mazaine.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—We're a forgetful people, but it might be just as well to remember the two billion dollars we handed Secretary Morgenthau to use at his own discretion.

Sometimes, as your correspondent lies awake of nights worrying about it, that exchange stabilization fund seems like the biggest thing in the world. Anyway, it's the biggest secret in Washington.

The money is supposed to be used to keep the dollar down on foreign exchange. But what's being done with it?

Nobody knows except Morgenthau and one or two others whose identity remains undisclosed. Nobody tells.

But some of the insiders, well equipped with inside information, can guess. It's something like this:

Once upon a time we had a large export trade and financed it by lending money to other countries so they could buy our goods. (It seemed like a good idea at the time.)

Many foreign customers stopped buying when we stopped lending. But many kept buying.

What did they use for money? They used foreign-owned dollars in American banks, with the result that whereas foreign countries had about three billions in bank balances and short-term notes here at the end of 1929, they now have less than 500 millions.

Well, that can't go on forever. Foreign balances here dwindle and dollar depreciation boosts our commodity balance of trade, making the problem of payment for our goods more and more difficult.

Foreigners must get American dollars to pay their debts for goods. They bid for dollars and that raises the value of the dollar abroad in terms of francs, lira, pounds and so on.

There's only one thing Morgenthau can do in a case like that. The law directs hi mto keep that dollar stabilized. So, almost automatically, we toss some of our stabilization fund into the pot and keep on dumping it. The process seems bound to go on unless we create something like an equal balance of trade.

If the process hasn't begun, as those insiders are sure it has, it will begin in the very near future.

An Alcoholic Plot?

Everybody here keeps on talking about Mr. William Wirt and his expose of the brain trust. At least one nationally famous brain truster was worried when he heard about Wirt's claim that a truster had told him of a Communist plot to upset the government.

He recalled at least one party of which, thanks to the refreshments, his memory of details was none too clear. He thought very likely he had amused himself by delivering a Communist speech. Sometimes he's like that.

"What did I say that night?" he kept asking his friends. And it took a lot of reassurance to quiet him.

Another Guessing Game

Once upon a time there was a New Deal and one of the first, most important things it was going to do was assemble very accurate statistics on unemployment.

The Hoover administration had so often fumbled and falsified those statistics that everyone agreed a cleanup was in order.

Miss Perkins was going to do it. Harry Hopkins promised the FERA would do it whether she did or not More recently there was a plan to have the CWA workers conduct an unemployment census.

Well, the American Federation of Labor's estimates remain the best and the most commonly accepted—and no one knows how accurate they are (They place the unemployed at more than 11,000,000.)

The A. F. of L. uses the Bureau of Labor Statistics index figures on employment for industry and trade—with the census figures of 1930 for comparison, the Department of Agriculture's basic figures for farm employment; the ICC's figures on railroad men and a certain degree of guesswork. (BLS figures are merely examples.

One of these days someone in the government will again suggest accurate unemployment statistics.

Seems Funny, Anyway

Maybe it's funny and maybe it's not, considering the way automobile magnates condemn the A. F. of L. and vice versa—

But the American Federationist, official A. F. of L. magazine, in its latest issue, carries full page advertisements for General Motors (Chevrolet, Pontiac, Buick, LaSalle, Cadillac), Dodge, Oldsmobile, and Plymouth.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

"Tired Child Needs Extra Attention.

It is about the child who is chronically fatigued that Olive Roberts Barton writes in this article, another in her helpful series on Child Training.

We set great store by viatmins and this is right. What vitamins are, precisely, I doubt if the most learned scientists can tell us.

All we have is the fact of results. Certain elements are contained in vitamins that directly affect the body chemistry and if they are omitted, health recedes. If vitamin starvation continues, there are results evident to the eye, such as rickets, for instance, when "D" is missing or scarce.

Sunlight and cod-liver oil contain this element, if it can be called an element. A child needs one or both, depending upon age and condition.

Watch for Weariness

But there are other vitamins needed, too. The average food of a properly-fed household contains a sa rule all that is necessary—milk, vegetables, greens, fruit, fats, sugar, meat, and so on.

But once in a while one child in a family otherwise healthy may be goand take him to the doctor if his ing down hill. Please watch this child weariness, lack of appetite, and pallor continue for any length of time.

There are things needed for body welfare besides these mysterious vitamins—certain minerals and tissue building foods necessary to strength and life.

Just what starts the "fatigue" child on the down grade depends upon many things. His own constitution, an illness, even remote, or a physical idiosyncrasy against the very elements needed.

His conduct will be affected by this tired feeling. He may be thought lazy, or indifferent, or just posing. He may be nervous, irritable, sleepless (or too sleepy), or inclined to cry a lot for no reason at all.

Perhaps he just needs a good tonic, and more sleep. If he needs more attention than this, and in many cases he will, the doctor will test him and treat him for the type of "element starvation" he is going through.

Often people both young and old cannot right themselves merely by rest and more food. We insist upon the child eating when he can't. When he does eat to please us his system may not be doing much with what his mouth pushes down to his stomach.

Nature Favors Youth

Of course, children have their ups and downs. Nature is on the side of youth and, given a little time, she will right temporary impairment. But the child chronically tired and listless, or using up energy faster than he can produce it, needs real help and attention.

He may be thin, but after all this is not always a criterion of ill health. Many perfectly healthy children are as stringy as beans. The mother's quick eye will know when he is too thin, I think. He should be gaining, if only a little bit, gaining consistently as he grows.

Children should be checked up every now and then to be sure that all is right. There is little use guessing. Anyway the "fatigue" child needs real help and he needs it at once.

NEXT: Keep the child healthful.

Avocados Add a Novel Note to Salads and Fruit Cups
By SISTER MARY
NEA Service Staff Writer

Spring is the time to experiment. Have you ever tried avocados on the family? If not, set a day. In salad or fruit cup, they will add a not of grateful novelty when everything is tired of all the old things.

In Florida the avocado is known as alligator pear or midshipman's butter. In California some call it calavo. By any name, it will still be rich in fat and vitamins A, B, D, E and G, not to speak of calcium, iron, phosphorus and assorted minerals.

They cook the avocado in Florida, but most people like it better raw.

When the thick-skinned flesh yields to a slight pressure, much as an apple does when we test for "mellowness," avocados are ready to eat. The flesh then is as smooth and tender as baked custard.

Tasty First Course

A zestful first course for a luncheon or dinner uses tomatoes and avocados in combination with crab flakes. Choose small, perfectly ripe and unblemished tomatoes—one for each person to be served. Scald, dip in cold water and peel. Scoop out the seeds and chill in a well seasoned French dressing for an hour. Drain and fill with equal parts of finely diced avocado and crab flakes generously sprinkled with lemon juice. Lime juice can be substituted for lemon if convenient.

The alligator pear combines well with any citrus fruit and forms the base of many piquant cocktails. An acid is used to bring out the rich flavor. A very simple and decidedly up-to-date way to serve an avocado cocktail is to dice the fruit, sprinkle with salt and a few grains of white pepper and pour over a sauce made of tomato satsup and lime juice. It must, of course, be very cold.

Prepared for Salad

Avocado and grape fruit pulp is delicious either as an appetizer or salad. When used as a salad, the grape fruit is preferred in whole carpels carefully freed from all skin and marinated in French dressing for an hour. The avocado is cut in slices the same size and shape as the grape fruit carpels and sprinkled with salt and lemon or lime juice. They are arranged rounded side up in a leaf of lettuce, alternating the fruits. A thread of green pepper can be laid across each salad if a vivid green garnish is wanted. Three slices of avocado and two sections of grape fruit make a nice serving for a dinner salad. If the salad is wanted as a main course luncheon salad to be served with sandwishes, larger portions should be provided.

Another delicious way to serve avocados is to cut them in halves—large ones in quarters—and remove the seed without peeling. The fruit must be thoroughly chilled before cutting as it discolors on standnig. Eat with a spoon.

Tomorrow's Menu

Breakfast: Oranges, cereal, cream, chipped beef in cream, pop-overs, milk, coffee.

Luncheon: Baked nut and tomato sauce, lettuce sandwiches, floating island, milk, tea.

Dinner: Avocado cocktail, crown roast of lamb, new potatoes in parsley butter, mint jelly, new peas in cream, asparagus salad, strawberry bomb, cocoanut macaroons, milk, coffee.

Lax The Bladder With Castor Oil?

No, it can't be done. But you can do it with juniper oil, buchu leaves, etc., contained in BUKETS, the bladder laxative, which is pleasant to take. Drive out impurities and excess acids that cause the irritation which results in backache, bladder weakness, burning and getting up nights. Get a regular 25c box. After four days if not relieved your druggist will refund your money. You are bound to feel better after this flushing and you get your regular sleep. Briant's Drug Store and John S. Gibson Drug Co. say BUKETS is a best seller. adv.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

Prepare Scalp and Hair for a Permanent

The permanent waving season, as any beauty shop will tell you, begins along about the middle of April and lasts until the latter part of June. It's the time of year to get a wave that will withstand hot, humid weather, bathing and other summer sports. And women who are coiffure-conscious begin thinking right now about the type of permanent to get.

However, everyone should allow at least a month—six weeks is better—to get the scalp and hair in the proper condition to receive the new wave. If your hair is too dry, the permanent is likely to split the ends and then your curly locks will resemble a heap of straw. So avoid a dry condition before making that semi-annual appointment.

First, you can give yourself hot oil shampoos at practically no expense. Dip a clean cotton pad in a bit of warm olive oil and, parting the hair into small sections, rub the oil on the scalp. When you have finished, wrap a towel around the hair and go to bed, giving the scalp a chance to absorb the oil while you sleep. Then, the next morning wash your hair in the usual way. If the hair gets unusually dry before time for the next shampoo, dip your finger tips in pomade and massage it into the roots.

And don't forget to use the hair brush. No other treatment is more beneficial than ten minutes of brushing, upward and outward, each night before you retire.

The Rain Song

It isn't raining rain to me,
It's raining daffodil;
In every dimpled drop I see
Wild flowers on the hills.
The clouds of gray engulf the day,
And overwhelm the town;
It isn't raining rain to me,
It's raining roses down.
It isn't raining rain to me,
But fields of clover bloom,
Where every busy swarming bee
May find a bed and room.
A health unto the happy!
A fig for him, who frets!
It isn't raining rain to me,
It's raining violets.—Selected.

Henry Ford Will Not Raise Prices

Manufacturer to Reverse Trend of Rest of Motor Industry

NEW YORK—(AP)—Dow, Jones & Co., in a copyright interview with Henry Ford at Detroit Wednesday, quoted the manufacturer as saying that "neither higher wages nor increased material costs" could force the Ford company to raise prices on its cars.

"I have found," Ford said, according to the interview, "that higher wages do not mean increased costs and if our material prices go too high we will start making our own.

"We are making a part of everything we use and from this nucleus can readily expand to take care of any or all of our requirements, if necessary."

The Ford Motor Co., said the Detroit dispatch, is operating in the black on present costs. It continues:

"'When prices go up, business goes down,' was Henry Ford's comment on the present price situation.

"Asked what the probable production of the Ford Motor company would be this year, Mr. Ford said.

"'I have not thought much about that. We will make all the cars people want to buy. I should think about 1,000,000 units.'

"'It is pretty certain,' said Mr. Ford, 'that everybody will be looking for a plan to reduce prices before we can say that business is getting back where it should be.'"

It was recalled here that on last December 9 when the new Ford models were introduced their prices represented increases of $5 to $35.

Mr. Ford's remarks Wednesday apparently referred to further increases as a result of wage advances. Several other motor car companies have announced higher selling prices following the recent increase in wages.

PAYROLLS HIT NEW

make the exemption for purposes of the additional estate tax $40,000 instead of $25,000 as originally proposed by La Follette and $50,000 as in existing law.

Harrison said a compromise probably would be agreed to on the proposed three-cents-a-pound tax on imported coconut and other vegetable and fish oils, coming principally from the Philippines by excluding 200,000 tons of coconut oil and a comparable amount of copra from the levy.

The Mississippian said he might have another compromise to offer—regarding publicity of tax returns—but was not prepared to say so definitely.

However, he said he would propose an amendment for the committee compelling corporations in making returns to provide a list of those to whom they pay salaries and bonuses in excess of $15,000 and that such a list be sent to congress annually.

Acting on committee amendments which such speed that officials got far behind in their check, the Senate voted without debate for a capital stock and excess profits tax designed to raise $95,000,000 and for large surtaxes on "improperly accumulated surpluses" of corporations.

Up until the time the income and surtaxes were reached, the committee led by Senator Harrison had not been defeated on a single provision, although al were subject to amendments from individual senators later.

The committee had won preliminary approval of a revised income rate schedule when La Follette brought forward his substitute. The house bill provides a flat four per cent normal tax and surtaxes ranging from four to 59 per cent.

Urges Redistribution of Wealth

La Follette made an appeal for redistribution of wealth, saying its concentration was "inimical to the perpetuity of democratic institutions." He read a letter from Secretary Morgenthau estimating the revenue from his schedule at $185,000,000 above present law and said the committee schedule would raise only another $30,000,000.

Debt Defaulters Barred by U.S.A.

Americans Forbidden to Make Private Loans to Them

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A credit embargo was voted by congress Wednesday for foreign nations that have defaulted on their obligations to this government and its naitonals. By an almost unanimous voice vote, the house passed the senate-approved Johnson bill barring Americans from engaging in financial transactions with foreig countries that fail to pay their debts owed this nation or investors.

It was sent to the White House where President Roosevelt is expected to sign it.

Chairman McReynolds of the Foreign Affairs Committee sought the bill before the house under procedure barring amendments and requiring a two-thirds majority vote for passage, saying that when one of the foreign debtors refused to make its payment it asked "what are you going to do about it?"

"Here is our chance to reply: 'You can't borrow from our people,'" said McReynolds. "Let's show these foreign countries we are going to do something."

The bill provides a penalty of a fine of $10,000 and five years imprisonment or both for violation of the act.

Former Collector Accused as Short

G. P. Leatherman Declares Audits at Hot Springs Are Contradictory

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—Two indictments, one charging embezzlement of $3,291 in his 1931 account and a shortage of $12,468 in 1932, were returned Wednesday by the grand jury against George P. Leatherman, former county collector. The indictments came as a surprise, as Leatherman's case had been investigated by the previous grand jury, which declined to indict him.

Leatherman's books were audited by auditors from the office of Comptroller Griffin Smith who alleged that they found a shortage for the two years of $30,012, of which amount $17,554 was due to reduction in taxes made by Leatherman and allowed by the county court.

In a statement Leatherman asked that judgment be suspended by the people unti all the facts are brought out.

"Since the audit was made ender the direction of Griffin Smith and which was submitted to the present grand jury," he said, "and upon which the grand jury acted, an audit has been made by Russell Brown & Co., certified public accountants of Little Rock, whose reputation is recognized throughout the state. They are regularly employed by the Arkansas National bank and other large corporations of this city. Their audit shows many discrepancies in the audit made by Mr. Smith's men, and vindicated the administration of my office. All of these facts, I believe, will be established in a suit now pending in Garland chancery court."

Wirt Charges to Be Given Hearing

Republicans Lay Off as Democrats Probe "Revolution" Story

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Three Democrats and two Republicans were chosen late Wednesday to listen to the charges of Dr. William A. Wirt of Gary, Ind., that some of the professional advisors of President Roosevelt said they were plotting revolution.

They were Representatives Bulwinkle of North Carolina, O'Connor of New York and Arnold of Illinois, Democrats, and Lehlbach of New Jersey and McGugin of Kansas, Republicans.

A little earlier it had been indicated that the Republicans, while keeping an eye to any advantage they might gain from investigation of the charges, would not become deeply involved in the inquiry.

That position was hinted at Wednesday by Representative Snell of New York, Republican leader, who said:

"We're going to leave it up to the Democrats."

Asked what Republicans would be pdt on the committee, Snell added: "Yon can say there is one member of our party who is not going on the committee—Mr. Snell."

Snell's comment was made shortly after Speaker Rainey forecast that the investigation would be "very short" and told newspapermen that he was selecting "loyal" Democrats for the three posts that party would have.

"If all Wirt knows is what he is giving out now,' Rainey said, "the investigation ought to close almost immediately, because we certainly are not going to open up the entire recovery program to criticism at this time."

The speaker said that if all Wirt could produce was excerpts from speeches, books and public statements by Secretary Wallace, Hugh S. Johnson and others, the investigation should close in one day.

"He can't name a man who is fomenting revolution," Rainey asserted. "His charges continue to get sillier and sillier."

Jury Disagrees in Solon-Taxi Fight

Cabman Thought He Was Tough, But Congressman Was Ex-Convict

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A police court jury reported Wednesday night after six hours deliberation that it was unable to agree on a verdict in the assault case against Representative F. H. Shoemaker of Minnesota.

The charges were brought by a taxicab driver, who accused Shoemaker of swearing at him, hitting him in the eye and threatening to kill him because he declined to turn his cag aside to let the representative drive past on a crowded street.

Shoemaker denied the chargs. He admitted, however, that he might have used a few "hells and damns."

Failure of the jury to reach a decision means another will have to be named to consider the case.

Charles Newman, the taxicab driver, had his story partially corroborated by a policeman, Joseph Cook. The officer said Shoemaker was abusive and threatened to kill the cab driver but that he saw no blows struck.

Cook testified, however, that Shoemaker in his presence made a lunge at Newman and that he stepped between the two men. The officer said Shoemaker admitted to him he had hit Newman before he came upon the scene. He said he asked Shoemaker to show his driver's permit and was told:

"Where I come from, I don't need any, I'm Congressman Shoemaker and everybody in Washington knows me."

The officer said he had to jump out of the way to avoid being struck by Shoemaker's car when the latter drove away.

Newman said Shoemaker drove into the rear bumper of his cab while he was waiting for a stop light to change and then pushed him about 200 feet by ramming him six or eight times. He said the representative got out of his car, punched him in the eye while he sat in his cab and then knocked him to the ground when he got out.

Shoemaker entered a categorical denial to Newman's charges.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

PABLITO, a handsome youth, becomes a fugitive when he flees from Key West to Havana with BEAU and LOTTIE, two thieves. Pablito has been accused of a murder he did not commit. He is in love with ESTELLE FIELD, daughter of rich JIM FIELD, but feels he has exiled himself from her forever.

In Havana he becomes celebrated as a boxer and he and Beau open a gymnasium.

SIR AUBREY, a titled Englishman and Pablito's father, is searching for his son, employing BILLINGS, New York detective.

Three years pass and then Pablito and Estelle meet again. They admit their love for each other. MARCIA TREADWAY who is visiting the Fields could prove that Pablito was not the murderer but has remained silent, fearing scandal.

Billings, in Havana, suspects Pablito may be Sir Aubrey's son. He decides to pay a visit to Morro Castle.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXI

THE morning that Billings decided to visit Morro Castle was the same one on which Marcia Treadway said to Estelle, "I suppose I really ought to see the place—"

The sentence ended in a yawn. Estelle said eagerly, "I'll order the car for 11 if that suits you."

"Oh, I suppose it will," Marcia agreed. "Hand me that newspaper, will you, child? And—read my letters for me. I don't know why people want to waste so much ink and paper anyhow."

Estelle settled to open and read Marcia's letters. At the third one she paused. It was from the one friend in whom Marcia confided. This friend—knowing Marcia's quest, though not the purpose behind it—had written, "Have you found your Pablito by any chance?"

Estelle looked quickly at Marcia who was studying the late-in-the-season list of arrivals in Havana and did not see the look. When Estelle went on reading her hand shook a little. What could Marcia want of Pablito? Would she recognize him if she were to see him? Estelle, continuing her reading only half-conscious of the words, thought she probably would.

She spoke up then. "This is evidently from a close friend of yours. She signs herself Jane."

Marcia was instantly alert. "Give it here, child," she ordered sharply. "I didn't know there was a letter there from her."

"The envelope was addressed with a typewriter," Estelle explained.

"She is secretary to Mrs. I. Browning Bishop."

• • •

"I HAVEN'T read much of it," said Estelle. Marcia's eyes narrowed, moving down the page and coming upon the mention of Pablito. Estelle's too quickly given reassurance told that she had seen the words. It was unfortunate. Marcia could not, at the moment, think of an acceptable explanation so, with outward calm, she finished reading the letter, resolved to request Jane hereafter never to use that name again—at least in writing.

Estelle was standing. "Then you'll be ready at 11?" she questioned.

"Yes, darling."

"It's a good time for the trip. A grim day is best."

"Poetic little lamb, aren't you?" Marcia asked, amused.

Estelle turned away with more color than usual in her cheeks. She was accustomed to being laughed at for such remarks and the laughter always made her feel lonely and young and misplaced. Pablito was the only one who did not laugh at her. He understood and often said the same sort of things himself.

Thinking of him for a moment, Estelle closed her eyes. They were to be married as soon as she was 21—two long years ahead. They knew they could not hope for Jim Field's consent to the marriage and that if they married without his consent no obstacles would stop him from seeking them out and finding them. Estelle it was who had seen the wisdom of waiting the two years and who had insisted upon it. There were times when she wondered at her own strength in making this decision but even then she clung to it.

• • •

AT the edge of Morro Castle Billings stepped from the car he had hired for the morning. "Ouch!" he groaned loudly. Then he climbed the hill stiffly and, on the way up, acquired a guide.

A smartly attired, hard-faced woman and a slender girl passed by, walking briskly and easily.

"The young one is the daughter of Mr. James Field," said the guide, nodding toward the couple.

"Is that so?"

"Yes. She is the beloved of Juanito, the fighter. They meet in the Parque."

"You don't say so!" Suddenly Billings was interested.

"Ah, yes! But Havana smiles upon the affair. Her father, Field, is very bad. The daughter is an angel and Juanito a good, good young man!"

"About how old is he anyway?" Billings asked as if to make conversation.

"Twenty-one or two, I would suppose. Ah—he is a wonder! A Stoic, a Spartan. He shakes the head to many ladies who seek him." To illustrate the guide shook his head as does an absent-minded individual, vaguely troubled by the buzz of a fly. "Always Juanito remain not in love until she comes. Than—ah! He is captivated. He succumbs completely! It is a pretty affair and all wish him luck."

"Why doesn't he go to the old man and ask for the girl?" Billings questioned between puffs. The coquina-paved grade was steep. Twenty-one or twenty-two—that was the right age. Hang it, he was getting excited about the affair! His heart had plunged as he heard the boy's age.

"Go to him? To Field? Field would buy a nobleman for his daughter to wed! Good or bad, it would not matter."

"Hum—" said Billings.

They were in the fort then and under the shadow of a great wall. "Here," the guide began oratorically, and then suddenly stopped. He said in a harsh whisper, "There is Juanito himself. He must have followed her here! They say he trails the car when she rides in it!"

"Where?" asked Billings.

The guide nodded.

"Let's mosy over there. Easy and casual like."

"Mosy?" the guide echoed stupidly.

"Vamos. Move along. I want to get near him but don't want to be caught. See?"

"Ah, the intrigue!" The guide smiled, showing a flash of white teeth. He took up his lecturing perhaps a little over-loudly. "If the Senor will step this way I will show him—"

• • •

BILLINGS stood quite near to Pablito as he looked at a spot in the wall where, the guide said, a patriot had once dislodged a stone to find a way to freedom.

Billings studied the young man casually. A darned good-looking young fellow, he was. Tall and broad of shoulder with clear, blue eyes. He seemed to be watching the gate as though looking for someone. Then Billings saw the two women who had passed him nearing. The one who was Field's daughter lagged so that, for a moment she was behind her companion. Billings saw her shake her head violently at Juanito.

He neared the young man. "Pretty rough time they had here, wasn't it?" he asked Pablito. No one brought up near Cienfuegos, Billings knew, would speak English without an accent. He waited Juanito's reply tensely.

"Yes, very bad," Billings heard and knew that the story about Tia Julia and Cienfuegos was a lie.

"This is my first trip here," he confided. "I think we kind of thought in the United States that all that happened in this war was Roosevelt riding around with his boys."

"Is that so?"

"All before your time, I guess."

The boy was looking after the girl. He had not heard.

"They say," Billings continued louder, "a stranger ought to see Cienfuegos, too."

"Oh, yes. Quite a sight."

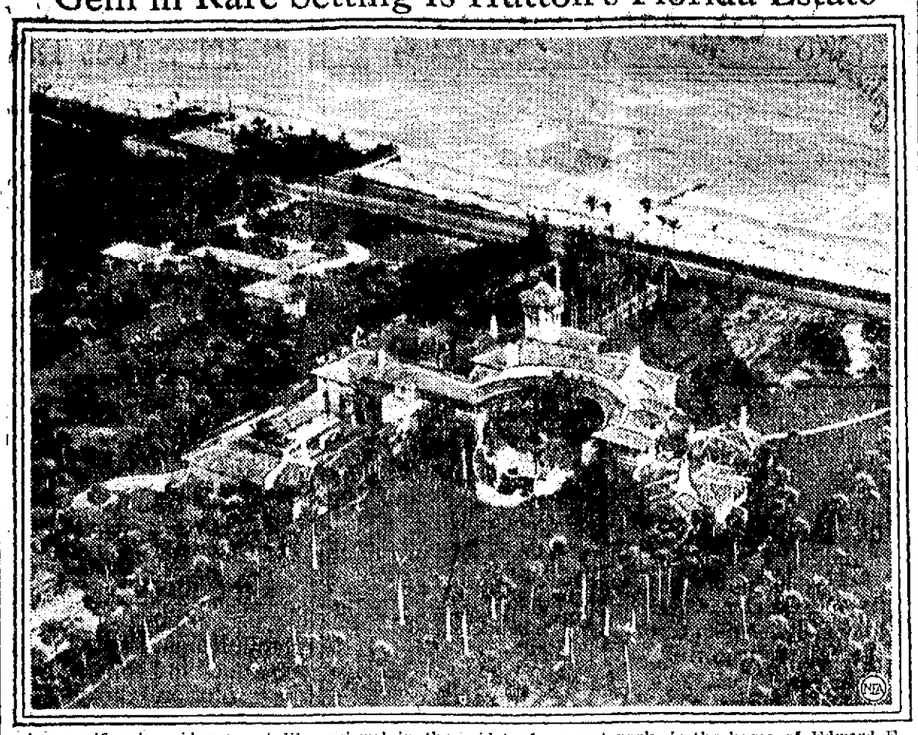

"I have a friend who has a sugar place near there. His name is Green. Josiah Green. I wonder if you can tell me which way his place lies? I want to look him up—"

Juanito said absently that he was sorry but he could not. Now Billings was utterly certain that the story about Tia Julia was a lie. He had learned the day before that Josiah Green's plantation was a large and famous one. Any boy reared at Cienfuegos would know of Josiah Green.

"Well, I'll ask elsewhere. Thanks just the same," Billings said. Then with great interest, contrasting sharply with the indifference of his other words, he put a question to the guide about how many—exactly how many—men had been shot in Morro by the Spaniards.

Your Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Discard Those Notions About Health Cures!

The number of notions that people have about health are probably greater and more peculiar than unestablished ideas in any other field.

How many times have you heard the statement made that washing inside and out is the best thing for the human body? Actually the human body is a self-regulating machanism, and if one takes six to eight glasses of water daily, his intestines get about all the washing they need under ordinary circumstances.

Of course, if you are sick with some type of infection of the lower bowel, you may require special types of washings, but those will have to be picked out by your doctor and perhaps given to you by a competent attendant.

Another notion that has frequently prevailed is the idea that deep breathing exercises early in the morning, preferably taken without any clothes on in front of an open window, is a certain method of good health.

While it may entertain the neighbors, there is no evidence that it really does bring about any remarkable improvement in health.

It has been pointed out, instead, that long-continued forced deep breathing washes out the carbon dioxide from the blood in that way may be harmful.

Breathing is also an automatic mechanism and any time we interfere with it we are likely to be disturbing the actions of a well-regulated machine.

Then there is the notion that a pain in the back means a disease of the kidney. A lot of old-time patent medicine advertising that used to be prevalent in our youth is responsible for maintenance of this idea.

Actually, pain in the back is only rarely associated with a disease of the kidney. Disturbances of these vital organs are more likely to manifest themselves by swellings in various portions of the body and by changes in the excretions, which can be found with laboratory examination.

Finally, there is that old bugaboo, autointoxication, presumably the appearance of a coated tongue. Headache or a feeling of dullness is, according to usual belief, always due to the presence in the bowels of a great deal of putrefying and decaying food material.

Actually, however, the presence of such decaying material is a rather rare occurrence. Most scientific physicians have discarded the word "autointoxication."

In health practice there is nothing so important as exact knowledge. Notions and superstitions lead to fears which may be more serious than the many minor disturbances of the human body.

Quick, a Good Rope

The club bore was telling for the twentieth time about his trip to India and what he saw there.

After a short silence a member inquired with yawn, "Can you by any chance do the trick yourself?"—Tit-Bits.

Scanning New Books

By BRUCE CATTON

These who read that excellent book, "The Captain Hates the Sea," by Wallace Smith, have undoubtedly been waiting eagerly for Mr. Smith to write another novel. Now he has done it; the book is "Bessie Cotter," it is utterly unlike its predecessor, and in a different way it is an equally excellent bit of work.

"Bessie Cotter" goes back a generation to the notorious old segregated district of pre-war Chicago, and its heroine is an erring sister who is attached to the staff of a house in the tenderloin.

Mr. Smith refuses to be either sentimental or indignant in his survey of that milieu. His Bessie Cotter is a straightforward, uninhibited, rather likable creature, whose one dream is to save enough money to take a vacation trip to Niagara Falls.

There's no especial plot to the book. It's simply a day-by-day record of events, a humorous recital of how Bessie's good nature betrays her. She saves for this vacation trip, and whenever she gets enough money some friend gets into trouble and needs a loan—and there go Bessie's savings.

In the end she's right when she started, still saving for that trip to Niagara Falls.

In spite of his subject, I don't think Mr. Smoth's book will offend anyone. He writes without leering or smacking his lips, and he refuses to grow sentimental. "Bessie Cotter" is quite a book.

Covici-Friede is publishing it at $2.

In "The Economy of Abundance," Stuart Chase calmly asserts that we are in the grip of a technological evolution which makes most of our political discussions meaningless.

We talk of rugged individualism, new deals, and so on, says Mr. Chase, without realizing that the ground has moved out from under us.

We are no longer in the machine age; we are in the power age, which means that our store of energy is now so abundant that all our old economics are as dead as the dodo.

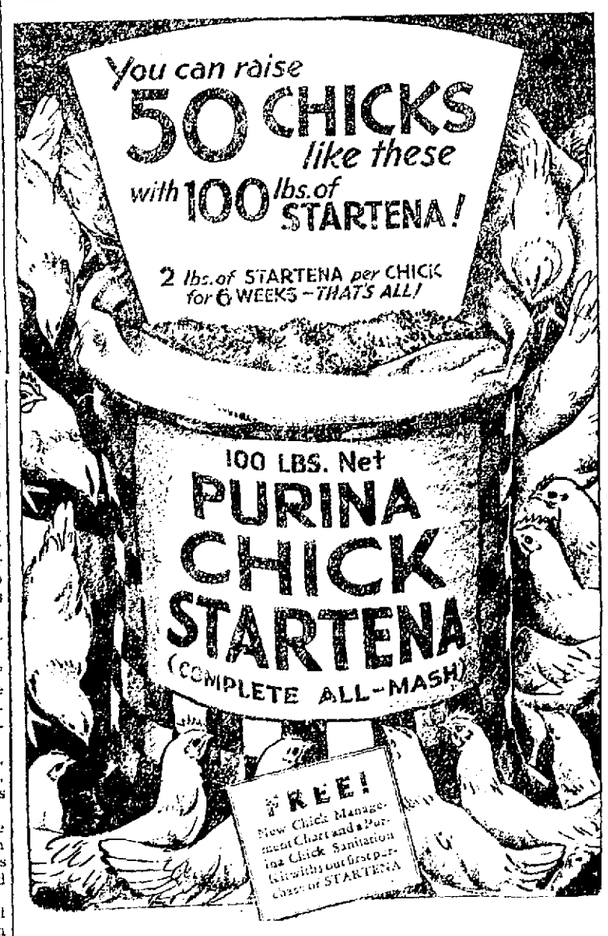

Always, he says, until the arrival of the power age, men lived in an era of scarcity; there was never quite enough of everything to go around, and there never could be.

Now conditions are the exact opposite. There is more than enough of everything, and the supply will be greater rather than less in the future.

In the era of scarcity, he continues, men produced things to sell. That was the only practical way of running things. But it simply doesn't work now—because there is so much of everything that prices are bound to collapse.

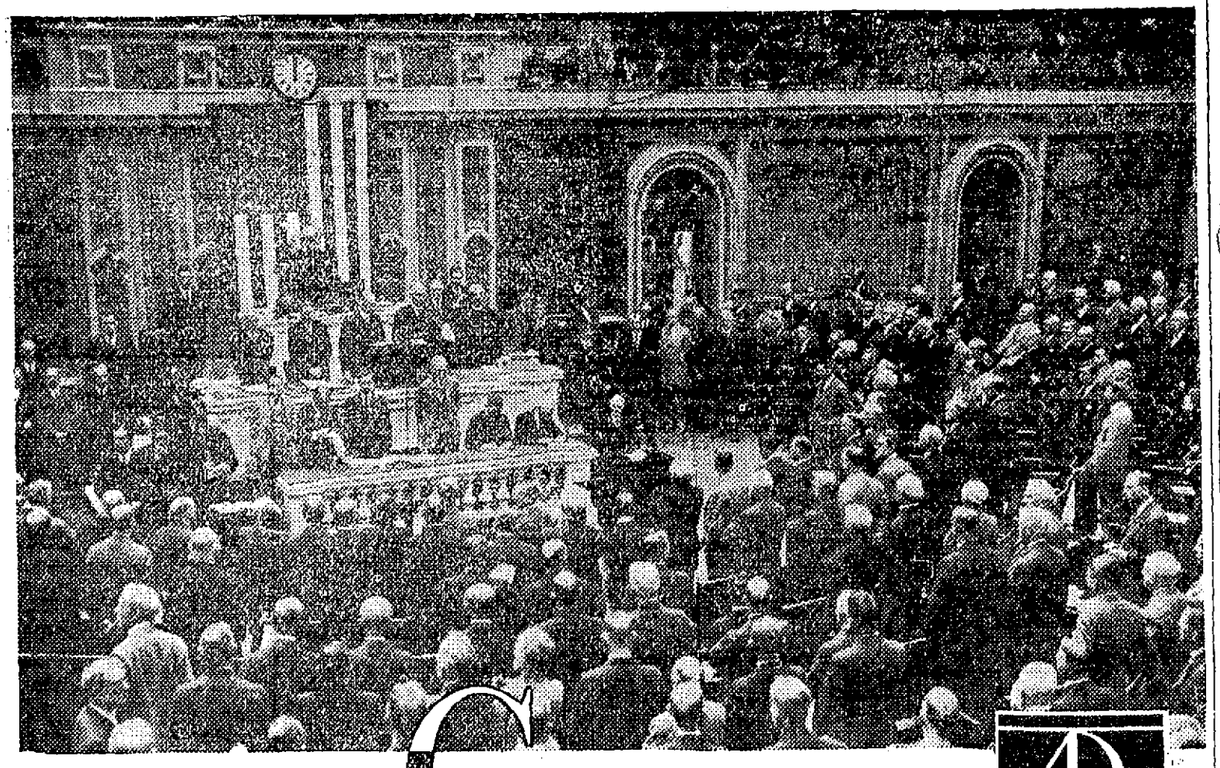

We must produce things to use, now. The question must not be, "How many people can buy this?" but rather, "How many people can use it?"

As a result, Mr. Chase declares, both capitalism and communism are out of date. We are going to remake our economic system, he predicts, not because this or that political party persuades us to, but because our limitless supply of usable energy is compelling us to do it.

El Dorado Votes Phone Rate Slash

50 % Reduction Ordered —Company Resorts to the Courts

EL DORADO, Ark.—Voters of El Dorado by a vote of 580 to 330 adopted an initiative ordinance reducing telephone rates in El Dorado by approximately 50 per cent in the general city election Tuesday and elected all Democratic nominees for office without opposition.

The ordinance provides that the new rates are to become effective from and after May 1, but John W. Carter, district manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company, said that the matter has been placed in the hands of lawyers of the company to determine what course will be taken to prevent "the confiscation of our property in El Dorado."

Mr. Carter's statement follows:

"The vote in favor of the initiative ordinance fixing the rates to be charged for telephone service in the city of El Dorado amounts to confiscation of our telephone property in El Dorado if the rates specified in the ordinance are permitted to become effective.

"Obviously, the telephone company must utilize all suitable and proper means to prevent the rates specified in the ordinance from becoming effective. Our lawyers are studying the situation to determine what will be done to prevent the confiscation of our property in El Dorado."

Under the ordinance one party service to residences will be reduced from $3 a month to $1.50; two-party service will be reduced from $2.50 a month to $1.00; busines telephones will be reduced from $5.75 a month to $3.50 and extension telephones would be $1.00 a month each.

The ordinance also provides that there shall be no installation charges.

Democratic candidates for city offices elected without opposition were John Carroll, city attorney; George W. Jackson, city clerk; John M. Shackleford, Ward 1 alderman; J. V. McKinney, Ward 2 alderman; D. M. Phillips, Ward 3 alderman, and J. S. Brocks, Ward 4 alderman.

Says Cardui Seemed To Do Her Most Good

"A few years ago, my health wasn't so good," writes Mrs. L. E. Erwin, of Lamar, Mo. "I was nervous and tired, and felt the need of a tonic. My mother advised me to take Cardui. After I had taken one bottle, I found I was getting results. I took about five bottles, and certainly was much better than I had been in some time, as my headaches had stopped. Cardui had done me more good than any medicine I had taken."

Rockefeller Center Adds Unique Service For Tenants

By JOSEPH A. BOND

NEW YORK, N. Y.—The greatest building project of modern times has added a unique service for their tenants it was announced at Rockefeller Center that the entire renting staff had been equipped with the Sight Meter. The use of this "light thermometer" not only for demonstrating the desirability of space at Rockefeller Center—insofar as light is concerned—but also in offering the meter to tenants to help them plan their interior arrangements, is a new and worth while service.

Seeing conditions in all sections of the enormous building project are as good as modern architecture and science can make them. The offices are so laid out that in the entire 70 stories of the main building, there is no space farther than twenty-seven and a half feet from a window.

In stressing the importance of seeing comfortably under all conditions, the renting staff have irrefutable statistics to offer prospective tenants. A few may be listed and should prove interesting to any employer.

1. As an employer you pay your help for what they see, know, or can learn.

2. 85% of what they know has come through seeing. 85% of what they are to learn will come through the use of their eyes.

3. Without good eyesight, an employee is a liability.

4. Without comfortable seeing conditions all your help has poor eyesight.

5. An employee uses more energy in five hours in visual work than he does shoveling snow for an equal length of time.

The renting staff at Rockefeller Center are the first to make use of the meter for office renting and planning.

Denies Refunding Equal to Default

Senator Hendricks Replies to Attack by W. O. W. Head

LITTLE ROCK—Criticism of Arkansas's refunding offer to holders of state highway obligations by De E. Bradshaw of Omaha, Neb., former Arkansas and now president of the Woodmen of the World, is not justified Senator G. W. Hendricks of Little Rock said Tuesday.

Senator Hendricks' statement follows:

"On behalf of the legislature, the governor and the state of Arkansas at large, I challenge the statement of De E. Bradshaw, president of the W. O. W., contained in the interview published in last Sunday's Gazette.

"He stated that Arkansas had repudiated her bonds. This statement is not true and, coming from such a source, if not correct will do the state a great harm.

"The refunding act surely is not a repudiation, and the legislature and the governor worked hard and long to get a bill that would be acceptable to both classes of bondholders who had different ideas as to their rights. The holders of road district bonds have valid oustanding contracts, and the legislature could not compel them to accept refunding bonds, and no effort has been made to do so.

"Certainly the state has not repudiated the bonds held by the W. O. W. because it was never its duty to pay them. They bought the road district bonds long before the state made any donation to the district. There was never any legal obligation between the state of Arkansas and the holders of these bonds. These bonds are liens against the lands created by the recorded pledge of the district. It is true that, in an effort to reach parity between the bonded and the non-bonded counties, the state undertook to pay these bonds with revenues from the gasoline tax, but this was done long after the bonds of the districts were sold and the bondholders still have the contracts originally made by the districts which constitute a lien on the lands within the districts, which was the only security given when the district sold the bonds."

If the CWA continues its activities for several months longer, it will have people working who never worked before.—Holland Progress.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

LUCKIES ARE ALL-WAYS KIND TO YOUR THROAT

"It's toasted"

"I smoke Luckies because the finest tobaccos and only the clean center leaves give Luckies that better taste. But they don't stop there. For throat protection, 'It's toasted!' Long golden strands of only the center leaves . . . rolled round, and firm . . . no loose ends. That's why Luckies 'keep in condition'—do not dry out. Luckies are all-ways kind to my throat."

✓ Luckies are all-ways kind to your throat

NOT the top leaves—they're underdeveloped—they are harsh!

Only the Center Leaves—these are the Mildest Leaves — They taste better

NOT the bottom leaves—they're inferior in quality—coarse and sandy!
